

After the dust had settled in 60 games in the Division I Women's tournament, four teams had advanced to the Women's College Cup, the soccer equivalent of basketball's Final 4.

Michigan Rush alum Mallory Weber is the lone Rush player still playing in the Division I tournament after her Penn State team knocked off Duke University, last year's National Runner Up 1-0. Penn State will match up with Florida State on Friday in one semi final while Defending Champion Stanford will take on perennial contented North Carolina in the other semi-final. The Championship final will take place Sunday afternoon in San Diego.

New York Rush alum Christina Angione will be participating in the Division III Final 4 as Wheaton College continued their run through the Division III tournament. They will take on Emory University on Friday.

Division I Bracket

Division III Bracket

Good luck Mallory and Christina!

On the men's side of the game, Colorado Rush products Paolo Del Piccolo and Zack Foxhoven at Louisville and Sean O'Connor at San Diego have all advanced to the Elite 8 in the Division I tournament. Micheal Soderlund (Idaho Rush) and Indiana University and Jordan Cyrus (Virginia Rush) and the University of Maryland also continue through to the next round. Louisville and Maryland will play on Saturday and San Diego will play Georgetown. Good luck to you four on Saturday!

Division I Bracket